

ABSTRACT

Method of making a breast cup for a garment on a breast cup defining component of moldable material, applying a flexible covering panel of at least part of a breast cup to the convex side of the component, applying a flexible decorative panel to the concave side of the component, and removing a region of the panel assembly to expose the decorative panel to the convex end.